

Body Art – Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Do I need a license to perform body art procedures in Adams, Arapahoe, or Douglas counties?

A: No, however you are required to conduct body art procedures in an approved and inspected facility, comply with the Rules and Regulations Governing Body Art in the State of Colorado, and pay a yearly inspection fee. A license is not required or issued by Tri-County Health Department. The state regulations can be downloaded from our website, www.tchd.org/bodyart.htm

Q: Can I conduct body art procedures at my residence?

A: You can conduct body art procedures at your residence only if the facility is approved by Tri-County Health Department and local zoning ordinances.

Q: Are inspection reports available to the public?

A: Yes, inspection reports are available by contacting Keith Homersham at 720 322-1521. In the future, inspection reports will be posted online through Tri-County Health Department's website.

Q: Does Tri-County Health Department regulate body art procedures performed on minors without parental consent?

A: No, but is a criminal act to perform a body art procedure on a minor without parental consent. Local police departments can be contacted to pursue criminal charges.
